William Ward Plantation Brazosport Archeological Society

The Ward Plantation was developed only a few years before the Civil War, but was turned into an excellent cotton producer by its young owner William Ward. The lands for the plantation were taken from the southern half of the Asa Mitchell Headright League which lay east of the Brazos River on both sides of Oyster Creek just north of the Retrieve Plantation of the James Hamilton family. Originally developed by William Fly the plantation was acquired in 1858 for William Ward by his father Thomas B. Ward's Estate. William Ward did not survive the Civil War and although she remained in Alabama, his aunt Ann Ward, held the property until 1879. The plantation was managed for Ann Ward after the Civil War by Dr. John L. Abrahams, a Confederate veteran. It was bought by his father Probate Judge James Abrahams of Alabama and was shortly transferred back to Dr. J. L. Abrahams. Heirs would hold the property into the 1950's. A development corporation transferred the plantation to the U. M. Harrison family in 1955. The plantation home was damaged in the 1900 hurricane and destroyed in the 1932 hurricane. The property is still part of the U. M. Harrison Estate. The area of the plantation structures is now cattle pasture along Oyster Creek.

Asa Mitchell¹ with his wife Charlotte Woodmancy and son Nathan moved to Texas in 1822. Asa Mitchell received title to his Headright League of land July 7, 1824. The census of March 1826 classified Mitchell as a farmer and stock raiser with a wife, two sons and a daughter. Asa and his family made their home at the mouth of the Brazos River in an area that would become the port of Velasco. He opened a salt works and became an enterprising commercial importer of household supplies and provisions for Stephen F. Austin's colonists. His wife died September 17, 1830 and was buried at Velasco. He participated in the Battle of Velasco in 1832, but by 1835 he moved to Washington-on-the-Brazos² and by 1840 he and new wife Emily Brisbin were living in Bexar County.³

In 1853-1854 Asa and his son Nathan Mitchell sold the southern half of his Headright League to William Fly from Mississippi for a total of $16,500[Brazoria County Deed Record⁴: F 544/45 & F 685]. William Fly is listed in the 1850 Census in Madison County Mississippi:

William Fly	55	M	North Carolina	Planter
Mary J. Fly	56	F	North Carolina
Elvira Fly	17	F	Tennessee
George W. L. Fly	15	M	Mississippi	Student
William H. Seat	25	M	Tennessee	Methodist Clergyman
Sophia L. Seat	21	F	Tennessee	(Daughter)
Mary F. Seat	1	F	Mississippi

By 1854 William Fly had moved to Brazoria County when tax records list 2114 acres of land, 80 slaves, 26 horses, and 90 head of cattle. In 1855 records indicate over 1000 more acres of land in other parts of the county, 81 slaves, 58 horses, and 85 head of cattle. The tax record also records two additional family members, John. D. and D. W. Fly had moved to the county with their slaves. William Fly died in ~1855 leaving a large number of heirs.⁵

In 1859 twenty one year old William Ward received title to the plantation from the Fly heirs[BCDR J 20/22 & J25/26]. William Ward had been operating the plantation the year previous as the property had been purchased by his father's estate for $15,000 in 1858. Thomas B. Ward had brought his two sons William and John H. along with a large group of slaves to Texas from Alabama by 1852. The 1850 Census Lists:

Thomas B. Ward	44	M	Georgia	Planter
Ann ⁶	40	F	Georgia
William	12	M	Alabama
John H.	10	M	Alabama

The 1852 tax records list 42 slaves and 20 horses in his possession but no land holdings.

From 1852 until his death in June 1855 while in Alabama records indicate Thomas B. Ward rented property from Robert & David G. Mills. His cotton was often loaded out at Bolivar on the east side of the Brazos River which would place his location north of Columbia. After his

George G. Tankersley, who owned a plantation along the Brazos in the northern part of the county, became the guardian of young William Ward and executor of Thomas B. Ward's estate. Tankersley continued to rent land for the estate from Robert & David G. Mills for $833.33 per year for 1855, 1856, and 1857. In 1856 he employed W. J. D. Way for $500 to oversee the operation. The next year he earned $515. Cotton was shipped from Bolivar landing on the Brazos to the Mills brothers in Galveston. Supplies including a variety of medicines for the plantation were being purchased and shipped back to the same location. Sundry supplies were shipped aboard the steamer Betty Powell to Bolivar February 7, 1856:

Local merchants and various craftsmen from the Brazoria County area provided supplies and much needed skills in keeping the cotton plantation in operation. T. J. Coffee, George G. Tankersley, and George Dowell provided a variety of skills in blacksmithing while D. H. Dance worked on the cotton gin gear⁹. This bill was submitted in 1855 by T.J. Coffee:

Medical aid for the slaves was provided by F. M. Otis in 1855-1856 and James A. Dowell in 1857. Later in 1858 William Ward purchased additional horses from R. Champion whose plantation was just to the north of the Ward Plantation.¹¹

⁹ Ibid. September 1856 a gin band was purchased costing $34.13 and shipped to Bolivar aboard the steamer Fort Henry. It was a rubber belt 7 inches wide and 60 feet long.

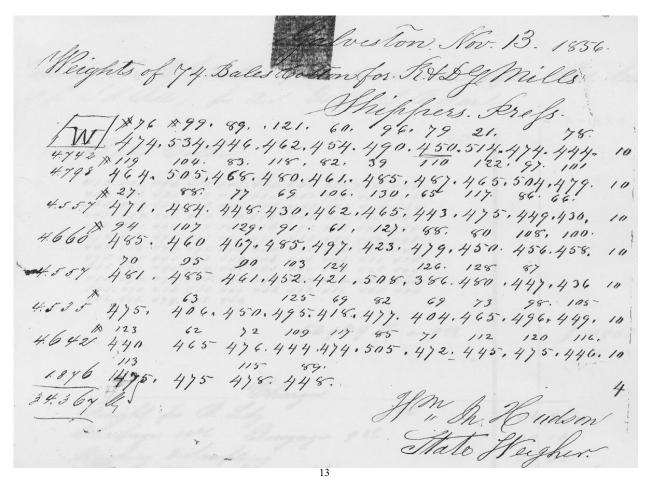

¹⁰ Ibid. An additional blacksmithing bill in 1857 by George G. Tankersley Jr. noted $4.00 for ironing two Negroes and there is a ledger notice paying W. D. Way $69.75 for reclaiming runaway Negroes.

Cotton cultivated in the spring and picked late summer to fall was shipped to Galveston being accredited to his account with the Mills brothers(See Appendix). The Ione, Alamo, Wasp, Falcon, Alice, Texana, Perseverance, Brazoria, Wilkins, Sarah, Joe Dart, Stephen F. Austin, Betty Powell, Major Harris, and Fort Henry were a few of the sloops, schooners and steamers which did business at Bolivar. This shipment of cotton traveled the new Galveston Bay Brazos River Canal aboard the steamer Fort Henry and was charged $22.20:

The 1856 crop was bringing 10 ½ to 10 7/8 cents per pound in Galveston. Additional shipments of the 1856 crop would arrive in Galveston adding to the credit of the Thomas B. Ward estate. The average cotton bale at this time weighed ~460 pounds as documented by the above shipment weighed at Galveston:

In 1858 William Ward asked his guardian George G. Tankersley to purchase a plantation for him as he was about to reach his 21st birthday in the fall. Tankersley selected the Fly Plantation and purchased it with cash from the Thomas B. Ward Estate. After William reached his 21st birthday on November 10, 1858 he wrote a deposition to the court releasing Tankersley from his executor's role acknowledging the receipt of $11,254.87, all the slaves from his father's estate, and the plantation with stock which had been purchased at his request:

...I have been allowed to have general charge of the business of my estate for the past year, and am well acquainted with all the property and effects rights and claims there to belonging or in any way appertaining to my Estate, and in consideration of the delivery to me by said George G. Tankersly Sr....I do hereby release and forever discharge the said George G. William Ward now owned 2122 acres of land, 56 slaves, and 23 horses according to the 1858 tax records for his father's estate. The probate records indicate that the William Ward had inherited an estate that was quite solvent and profitable.

[Thomas B. Ward Probate Case 623 & William Ward a Minor Probate Case 622]

January 18, 1860 he married Roxana Coffee¹⁷. Her parents Thomas J. and Malinda B. Coffee owned a plantation in the northern part of the county near the George G. Tankersley Plantation. The 1860 Census lists his household with property worth $30,640 and $59,800 personal value:

William Ward	22	M	Alabama	Planter
Anna Ward	17	F	Mississippi
W. J. D. Way	28	M	Mississippi	Overseer

The 1860 Slave Census Records indicate 63 slaves in 15 dwellings living on the property. Tax records list 60 head of horses and 100 head of cattle also. Abner Strobel described the property:

...It had a nice two-story frame residence with long galleries on the east and south. The south gallery was latticed in, which made it cool and pleasant in the summer. It had out houses to correspond, a gin house and a beautiful lake in the center...When its prime, the Ward Plantation was a very pretty place...The old residence still stands near the east bank of Oyster Creek...¹⁸

Mr. Russel Stanger, who leased the property in the 1900's described the home to Catherine Munson Foster: "Framed in long leaf pine, it was two-storied, with porches on the south and west supported by scalloped columns extending from ground level to roof. It had the usual wide hall down the center, and the stairs were of walnut. The rooms, with their fourteen foot ceilings and all windows, were plastered, as was the hallway. There were three huge rooms upstairs and three downstairs in addition to the dining room and kitchen." ¹⁹

¹⁹ Foster, Catherine Munson, "Catherine's Comments", The Facts, Freeport, Texas. Another mystery is that around the bend of Oyster Creek from where the house stood is a single gravestone near the water's edge. On it beneath sculptured hands is the following inscription: Lucy Henderson—She died as she lived, A Christian.

The turn of fortune would be cruel as William Ward's wife Roxana died August 22, 1860. She would be buried in the Sandy Point Cemetery near her parents' home. August 28, 1861 William Ward made out his last will and testament:

...being about to join the army of the Confederate States of America and leave the state of Texas... Third I will and bequeath to my friend W. J. D. Way the sum of five thousand dollars...Fourth I will and bequeath an undivided one half of the residue of my estate...to my Aunt Miss Ann Ward, who now lives in Livingston, Alabama...Fifth... the other undivided half of my estate ...to my half sister Mrs. C. B(R.). Mason now of Macon County Alabama...²⁰

Shortly after having joined William Ward wrote back to his overseer W. J. D. Way from Houston, Texas where he had enlisted:

Houston, Texas Camp McGreal Sept. 9, 1861—Mr. Way:

Please let Henry Sharp or T. Bennett have a small mule for a pack, as we shall have to pack our own trunks to New Iberia. One of those Austin mules will do; also an old saddle tree for a pack saddle. We have been here a week today and have taken the town. It is nobody but the "Archer Grays." We have had tolerably good health except a little bowel complaint. We were mustered in on Saturday evening, and took a solemn oath to serve during the war.

We have one hundred and seventeen men in our company and have refused more than forty applications. Leander McNeill and McKenzie came up yesterday but could not get into our company. They will either have to join another or go back home.

Your old comrade Holt stands best chance for Major of the regiment. Wharton refused it and says he will live or die with the Archer Grays. Geo. McNeill is 1st Lieutenant and will, I think; make a good one. Wm. Hoskins came up yesterday. I could come home today but don't want to come back until I go through a few of the trials of war, hoping that I may live to come back to my old home, to the friends whom I have always esteemed so highly, and that a kind and good God may bless and prosper you all.

I must draw to a close, as writing is a difficult operation in this encampment I remain,
Yours truly
Wm. Ward²¹

While serving as a member of Terry's Texas Rangers William Ward was captured at Woodbury, Tennessee in August 1862. He regained the regiment by October 1862 after escaping from Nashville, Tennessee.²² He was reported missing and presumed dead at Murfreesboro, Tennessee December 31, 1862.²³

The executors of his estate F. M. Jackson and Abner S. Lathrop filed an affidavit to confirm his death:

W. J. D. Way had been keeping the plantation going in the absence of William Ward and the plantation continued to produce during the war. Shortly after the Civil War the administration of the estate fell to Dr. John Lattimore Abrahams. According to Abner Strobel Abrahams served the eastern theater of the Civil War as a surgeon. His father James Abrahams was a probate judge in the state of Alabama after the war. Ann Ward had been living with the Abrahams family ever since her brother Thomas B. Ward had left Alabama for Texas in the 1850's. Since she inherited the property from the William Ward estate and she also had ~$7000 worth of notes signed by William owed to her she became the principal owner of the plantation. Dr. John L. Abrahams came to Texas to oversee the estate.

According to probate records in 1867 the plantation produced only 2/3 of 1 bale of cotton for $26 and Thomas Lynch Hamilton of the Retrieve Plantation had bought 400 lbs. of bacon and rented a wagon and team for a total of$70.50, only $96.50 credit for the whole year. During 1867 and 1868 expenses on the plantation amounted to ~$700 indicating most of the most of the plantation was not under cultivation at that time. In 1868 freedmen helped with the cotton crop and 15 bales were produced selling for $1553.46 of which they were entitled to half. Another two thousand bushels of corn made $600. This was only a small fraction of the production that was made before the war.

The estate was sold in Oct 1868 to William A. Wayne. All of the plantation and an additional 350 acres went for $8500 and he obtained most the livestock for another $1650. William A. Wayne actually lived in Alabama with his wife and family with the Abrahams family. Most of the total amount of assets of $11,851.30 went to pay creditors and the administrators fees. John L. Abrahams remained in Texas to oversee the plantation.

In 1872 William A. & Sarah Wayne sold the plantation back to Ann Ward. The property passed back into the hands of the Abrahams family in 1879 and remained in the family until 1952. During this period the property seems to have been rented out to various individuals. Catherine Munson Foster related in a newspaper article. The original home had been heavily damaged by the 1900 hurricane and in 1932 the home was occupied by a Negro family, the John D. Burks when a hurricane again hit the coast:

After it was over, Burks described what happened from his bed in the Jefferson Davis Hospital in Houston, where he was recovering from a fractured arm and other injuries.

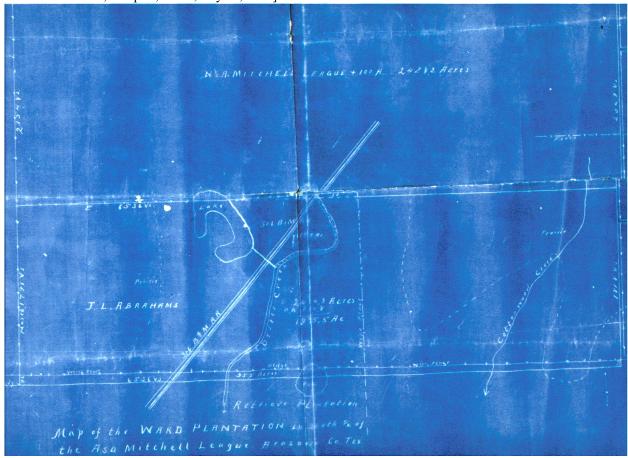

..."We live at the Ward place, four miles south of Angleton—that is, we did before this storm. There were five of us in the house when it fell down on top of us.

My wife and I were downstairs when the crash came. It pinned me down on the floor. My wife was pinned down on the first floor, too.

The others in the house were near the fireplace, and as the floor (ceiling) leaned against it, it didn't pin them down. They left the house to save themselves, and didn't have a chance to do anything for us.

That was about 10 o'clock at night (Saturday). They didn't get us out until 7:30 Sunday morning. My wife Ella May Burks, was worse off than I was, and they didn't move her. I haven't heard any more from her.

During the night I called for help, but it didn't do any good." ["Catherine's Comments", The Facts, Freeport, Texas, July 13, 1975]

In 1955 U. M. Harrison bought the property on which the plantation structures would have stood and the property still remains with the Harrison family heirs. At the present time the property is mainly a cattle pasture.
